ManpowerGroup Named World's Most Admired Company by Fortune Magazine for Seventeenth Year

January 24, 2019

ManpowerGroup receives top marks for Social Responsibility and Global Competitiveness

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 24, 2019 /PRNewswire/ -- ManpowerGroup (NYSE: MAN), the leading global workforce solutions company, has been named one of Fortune Magazine's 2019 World's Most Admired Companies for the 17th time, receiving top scores for Social Responsibility and Global Competitiveness.

"We're pleased to be recognized as a leader in our industry and one of the world's Most Admired Companies by Fortune," said Jonas Prising, ManpowerGroup Chairman & CEO. "This recognition of our global expertise and commitment to doing well by doing good is particularly meaningful as we know it's important to our people and our clients. We know from our research too that purpose matters to all, from boomers to millennials. This accolade is testament to our people who are delivering on our commitment to connecting millions of people to meaningful work, upskilling them and developing inclusive work environments every day."

Fortune's World's Most Admired Companies serves as the annual report card on corporate reputation. Rankings are based on a wide-reaching survey of executives, directors and financial analysts who rate companies in their own industry based on nine key attributes, from long-term investment to people management.

The full list of Most Admired Companies is available online and will be featured in the February issue of Fortune magazine.
